

THE NEXT STEP IN YOUR TAXATION CAREER.

Taxes dominate today's political and business climate. Always changing and increasingly complex, the issue of taxes demands a professional who can confidently advise executives and organizations on a wide range of critical issues. Our Master of Science in Taxation program meets this demand head-on with a sharp focus on preparing professionals who are ready to step up and put their expertise into action.

This program is ideal for those with an accounting or tax background seeking career progression as advisers and consultants, executives in public and private enterprises, and leaders in the field of taxation. As you sharpen your technical skills and command of current tax legislation, you will learn how to research and navigate the current internal revenue code and other tax platforms and anticipate and respond to changes in regulation.

Further, a unique benefit is that upon successful completion of the master's program, all 30 credits could be transferrable towards the D'Amore-McKim Part-Time MBA program, should you chose to pursue the additional degree.

Learn from accomplished scholars
and industry experts.

Courses are taught by leading professionals currently working in taxation, finance, and accounting. They bring a deep level of seasoned expertise to the courses they teach. In fact, many of our faculty are partners and managers at competitive firms. As they work with you one-on-one, you will gain a deep understanding of the relevant, practical insights that drive the industry today.

In the dynamic environment of your classroom, learning becomes doing. You and your classmates will bring client scenarios to class and make them case topics resulting in insights you can put to work immediately. Your fellow students will also be engaged tax professionals, and you will learn from them as they learn from you. You will forge relationships that strengthen your all-important network as you discuss current tax challenges with renowned faculty and other tax professionals, engaging in discussions that go beyond the textbook into real world applications.

"I've learned so much while working towards my MST, but the skill that really helped me to improve my effectiveness and efficiency is tax research. Since tax laws are constantly changing, the program teaches you how to stay current with the new laws and regulations. As a result, I am able to implement these skills on a daily basis at work."
