Experience everywhere.

At the D'Amore-McKim School of Business, experiential learning is at the heart of our academics. Our unique learning model integrates classroom study and professional work experiences with 3,200+ employer partners located in more than 131 countries and on every continent. This model encourages intellectual development, innovative thinking, and personal growth, and helps you gain a global perspective. So you won't just acquire the skills and experience you need to keep pace with today's rapidly evolving workforce, you'll be in demand.

Each of our industry-aligned Full-Time MBA programs offers you the distinct opportunity to exchange ideas and experiences with students, faculty, and people from around the world—helping you learn with anyone, anywhere, at any time.

No other institution has greater experience advancing and applying this standard of learning, making Northeastern a university like no other.

Real-world experience.

Corporate residency, made real.

Becoming a leader in your field will take more than an outstanding classroom experience. It will require the kind of learning that comes only from meaningful, immersive, MBA-level experience. That's why we integrate a fully paid, three-, six-, or 12-month corporate residency directly into our two-year program.

Our programs are designed to help you meet the growing industry demands and challenges of today's hyperaccelerated world of business. Each corporate residency goes beyond the typical internship. You'll play an active role in a leading company or startup in your field of interest. You'll work alongside the team members, contribute to and lead critical projects, and gain firsthand knowledge of real-world business challenges and demands. You'll make meaningful contributions as you explore possibilities for your career path.

Your corporate residency will give you skills, confidence, and a lifetime of valuable connections that will help you stand apart and accelerate professionally.

That's the D'Amore-McKim approach to business education—powerfully integrating theory and practice to take your career to the next level.

Class of 2019 snapshot

At D'Amore-McKim, we enrolled 77 students in the Full-Time MBA cohort. Each student worked as a corporate resident within a leading or entrepreneurial company, where they gained crucial business experience and built up a powerful network of professional ties.

100%

Every student in the Class of 2019 was hired for corporate residency.

$32.50 /hour

The average hourly wage earned by our students on corporate residency exceeded $30.

33

World-class, leading companies hired our talented students.

A strong learning model.

Integrate thinking and doing.

Employers value leaders with a diverse educational background, which is why we've redesigned our Full-Time MBA curriculum to give you broader exposure to multiple disciplines and perspectives. This means you'll take courses outside the business school, which is an opportunity few other MBA programs provide. You'll choose these courses from six distinguished Northeastern colleges, with an eye toward pursuing areas of concentration that interest you and complementing the foundational business education you're receiving via the core curriculum.

Creating a powerful network.

Your cohort, your professors, your corporate residency relationships—the D'Amore-McKim MBA program brings new resources to your network every day.

Whether you're in the classroom, working in a company through your corporate residency, or taking part in a consulting project, you'll form lifelong relationships with students, employers, world-class faculty, guest lecturers, and alumni with backgrounds in a variety of companies and industries. You'll work alongside talented, motivated professionals from different facets of industry and society, creating an experience that's both local and global.

At the heart of this experience is the Graduate Career Center. You'll be paired with a career advisor who helps you network with Northeastern's employer partners and gain invaluable work experience with leading companies.

The connections between the Graduate Career Center and the business world are rich and deep. You'll have the opportunity to build significant relationships with industry leaders at executive lunches, curate your personal brand, and refine your job placement strategy in mock interviews and trainings. The Graduate Career Center offers you multifaceted pathways as you expand your connections and identify new career opportunities. The services—including state-of-the-art career planning and search tools—are available to you for life. In short, you'll create a powerful network that will stay with you.

Building the foundation.

Grow a peer network as diverse as today's business climate.

Your program begins in the fall with one semester of MBA foundation courses and career management classes. You will complete rigorous coursework as part of a small, intimate Full-Time MBA cohort composed of professionals from different backgrounds and industries.

Together, you and your classmates will establish deep connections, ensuring that learning continues outside the classroom and your global network continually grows in value. The result is synthesized knowledge, skills, ideas, and critical thinking that translate into the unique ability to work with anyone, anywhere, at any time.

“

I come from a legal background, so I was excited to find the Graduate Consulting Club in January 2017. Students come in with an open mind, meet new people, and build sincere relationships. They also learn from the professors and make them lifelong resources, which is the best way to develop genuine insight into the professional world. The support of the professors and staff has been tremendous and very encouraging.

What was your biggest takeaway from working toward your MBA?

The MBA develops business leaders, teaches you how to manage company requirements, and gives you practical experience to handle the different challenges that a company may face.

What was your most valuable experience?

During the Global Projects course, working in India, I learned how business is done in a different culture and applied my coursework to real-life problems.

What would you say to a prospective student considering D'Amore-McKim?

The corporate residency, which allows for a six-month experience at a company, develops your skills when applied to everyday business challenges, and helps you decide which career track to pursue further.
