Grant Funded Academic / Industry Research

- Title: Understanding the Emerging Landscape of ESG Human Capital Measures
- Specifics: Six Months Northeastern University Research Funded By The Walmart Foundation

Summary: This qualitative research project created a foundational scan of how key actors are approaching the emergence of ESG-related human capital measures. The first phase will be to develop hypotheses and takeaways from a thoughtful review of the existing literature on the topic, including business/trade press, think tank reports, scholarly articles, regulatory publications, etc. The crucial second phase will build on this foundation via interviews as 15-20 interviews with a wide range of experts to include academics, ESG standards bodies, rating agencies and key investors, and leading employers, think tanks, and job quality experts, among others.

Deliverable: A publicly published report for the benefit of employers, policymakers, and other key stakeholders interested in this topic – with a focus on mapping out how this trend is likely to develop, and highlighting the opportunities, barriers, and emerging landscape.
